Governor of Banco de España elected member of European Systemic Risk Board (ESRB) Steering Committee

At a meeting of the General Board of the European Systemic Risk Board (ESRB) on 18 December, the Governor of the Banco de España, Luis M. Linde, was elected a member of the ESRB's Steering Committee for a three-year term. He replaces the Governor of the Banca d'Italia, Ignazio Visco, whose term of office has expired.

The ESRB was established in January 2011 with the aim of preventing systemic risks that might affect the financial system of the European Union. The Steering Committee provides guidance to the General Board of the ESRB and ensures its efficient functioning.
