STATISTICAL PRESS RELEASE

Madrid, 26 October 2020

The Banco de España launches an app to consult economic and financial statistics

The Banco de España has today taken a further step forward in the dissemination of statistical information, launching an app that adds a new means of gaining access to key statistics.

The Statistics app allows swift and straightforward access to the public at large of a selection of the main economic and financial variables produced both by the Banco de España and by other national and international institutions.

The app offers users the following functionalities, among others:

- Topic-based browsing to provide access to almost 1,000 series, by means of economic and financial concepts.
- Access to detailed information. For each series selected, the app will offer the following information:
 - An interactive chart with a selection of tailor-made ranges for rapid, easy viewing of the trend of the series consulted.
 - Series data in tabular format.
 - Useful methodological information, such as the units in which the economic magnitude is expressed, type of data, maximum and minimum values, source and statistical notes.
- Option of saving as favourites those indicators of most interest to users, providing for immediate access and offering the latest figure of such indicators swiftly and straightforwardly, simply by opening the app.
- An updated release calendar, with the publication dates of Banco de España statistics in two formats: a view of the calendar and a list of upcoming events.
- Possibility of app users sharing series via email or instant messaging.

The app is available both in Spanish and English. You can download it and obtain more information about it at Apple Store for iPhone mobiles and at Google Play for Android mobiles using the following links:
