

25-29 November

Aim and content

This seminar seeks to bring together a diverse group of central bank professionals to share experiences, thoughts and ideas on the function of central banks in today's world. In addition, the seminar is a networking opportunity for central bank experts.

The seminar will address a broad range of subjects relating to the functions and activity of central banks, as well as the challenges facing central banks in the 21st century, in particular how to contribute to price and financial stability, especially within the framework of monetary union and of a transnational supervision mechanism. Among the subjects to be addressed are the developments and main trends taking place at central banks, their main functions in relation to monetary and financial stability and banknote circulation, their legal status and their governance models, the organisation of their support functions and, given their current relevance, the special aspects of the setting up of the European System of Central Banks and its distinctive model of governance and organisation.

Professional profile of attendees

The seminar is aimed at experts from Latin American central banks who have at least three years of experience, a high potential for professional development and the ability to offer their own views and to participate actively in the seminar discussions.

Organisation and format

The seminar is organised by the Banco de España. It will be held in Madrid in Spanish. However, if required, the Banco de España may offer simultaneous translation into English.

There will be morning and afternoon sessions, with experts from all the Directorates General of the Banco de España. Attendees will be encouraged to participate actively, since their contribution is essential to achieve the aims of the seminar.

Participation is by invitation only.
