

23-27 October

Aim and content

This first edition of the International Banknote Technology Workshop (TITBI – acronym in Spanish), which will take place in Madrid, aims to train people from central banks and their internal printers and those responsible for tasks related to the design and production of banknotes.

The following contents will be addressed, among others:

- Design, substrate and security elements of the banknotes
- Manufacturing technology and quality management
- Circular economy
- Environmental management in banknotes
- New developments for future series

Organisation and format

The technical meeting is organised by the Banco de España with a duration of four days and a half, in person and in Spanish.

There will be expert speakers from the Banco de España's Directorate General Financial Conduct and Banknotes, as well as other experts from central banks.

Participation is by invitation only.

One hundred pesetas note (1898)
Mariano Fortuny y Madrazo
Oil on canvas