

4-5 October

Aim and content

The objective of the meeting is to reflect on the current framework of action of central banks, their environment and their strategy, focusing especially on their governance and the modernization process of said entities, in accordance with the trends set by the external environment.

In this Meeting of Experts, special attention will be paid to the digital transformation of organizations; new ways of working (teleworking, meetings and virtual activities); sustainability and its implications for central banks; new business models with special incidence in the financial market; changes in the political and social environment.

Professional profile of attendees

The meeting is aimed at central bank personnel, managers or experts and specialists who are members of different areas of action of central banks, such as members of collegiate and management bodies; cabinets and advisors; general secretaries; strategic planning; transparency and access to public information; regulatory compliance and risks; legal advice; document management and digital transformation; institutional modernization projects; among others.

Organisation and format

The meeting will be organised by the Banco de España in collaboration with Banco Central de Chile and CEMLA. It will take a theoretical and practical approach, and will include discussion of the particularly relevant central bank governance issues mentioned above. Renowned experts will provide their view on the external environment, in specific presentations focusing on the understanding of society, the geopolitical environment and the latest technological developments in light of recent events.

Participation is by invitation only. Registrations will be processed by CEMLA.

It will be held in person in Chile.

Mercury (2009)
João Maria Gusmão y Pedro Pavia
Color chromogen copy

